

Information for Breast Cancer Patients and their Families - Australian Web Sites

myparentscancer - <http://www.myparentscancer.com.au/>

is an interactive site, which aims to help families communicate about cancer by giving teenagers information and advice. The site features an emotion barometer, to help the young people understand the emotions they may be experiencing and carries the important message "You are not alone". The site was developed by the National Breast Cancer Foundation in conjunction with CanTeen Australia.

Boysdocry - <http://www.breasthealth.com.au/boysdocry/>

When someone you love has breast cancer, it affects you too. Pretending it will be okay is not the answer. And as much as you want to fix it you can't, but you can do something to make it better. For practical advice and support go to www.breasthealth.com.au/boysdocry or call 131 120. * Note if you are able to use the banners attached to link to this campaign website, that would be really good.

Breast Cancer Network Australia - <http://www.bcna.org.au/>

Breast Cancer Network Australia (BCNA) is the informed national voice of Australians personally affected by breast cancer. It seeks to empower them and improve their care by advocacy, the provision of information and targeted support, for the benefit of the whole community.

Breast Cancer - International Web Sites

CancerBACUP

The UK's Leading Cancer Information Service. Information available on individual chemotherapy and hormonal drugs

Oncolink - <http://www.oncolink.org/>

Through OncoLink you can get comprehensive information about specific types of cancer, updates on cancer treatments and news about research advances.